About the Exhibition

Jena Maric's debut solo exhibition features a body of work spanning the last five years. Centered in collage, her art explores the diverse landscapes of her life—from the beaches and old mill towns of her current home in Connecticut to the New York City streets where she was raised.

Through an intuitive, personal lens, she captures the fluid rhythm of everyday life. By layering photographs and magazine cutouts with ink, oil pastel, and colored pencil, she constructs a fantastical world where anything and everything is possible.

ARTIST BIO

Just after retiring from careers in publishing and orchestral management, Jena Maric returned to her primary interest in making art. Recently, she has concentrated on constructing collages that feature her photographs and drawings.

Inspired by her daily walks, she has created a series of scenes, based on her observations of natural and man-made environments.

She has studied privately with artist Eddie Niño, and at the Silvermine Art Center, the New York Studio School, the Fontainebleau School of Music & Fine Arts, and the Arts Student League. Jena lives and works in Westport, CT. Her artwork can be viewed on her website at
